

HAPPENINGS IN AND ABOUT TOWN

EX-PATROLMAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

William N. Lichtenberger Dies After Long Illness—Requests Post Mortem.

William N. Lichtenberger, 51 years old, one of the city's oldest patrolmen and well known citizens, passed away at his home, 1221 E. Dayton st., Sunday morning at 6:20 o'clock. Attending physicians pronounced the cause of his death as leakage of the heart, which troubled him for years but which he was able to combat and he at work until last July.

In July he was forced to yield to the ravages of his disease and was retired from active service on the police force under the pension law. Since July his condition has steadily grown worse until for nearly two weeks before his death he was unable to eat, sleep or lie down, but was forced to sit in a chair, requiring constant attention. As the end drew near, he foresaw it and resigned himself to his fate, making all of his funeral arrangements himself. For several days a patrolman has been in constant attendance to lend whatever aid he could to the dying man.

Requested Post Mortem.

At the request of Mr. Lichtenberger, made before his death, Drs. E. R. Dean, E. P. Wagner and C. C. Varier held a post mortem over the body and said that the only thing that kept him alive for so long was his great combative power and a wonderful fortitude in all his sufferings.

Mr. Lichtenberger was born in St. Joseph county, June 8, 1865. When he was 15 years old he went to Kansas, where he applied for enlistment in the army, but was rejected on account of poor lungs. After staying there for several years and building up his weakened lungs he returned to South Bend in 1890 and has lived here continuously since that time.

Policeman for Sixteen Years.

For 16 years he was a member of the local police force, but his service was not continuous. He was first appointed to the force on May 5, 1892, but resigned Oct. 18, 1894. Again on May 10, 1900, he was appointed and served until April 14, 1901, when he resigned. His longest term of service was from April 30, 1903, until July 5, 1916, on which date he was retired from active service.

He was married to Miss Ida May Braxington on July 25, 1893, in South Bend. His wife, a daughter, Gladys; his mother, Mrs. G. B. West of Bremen, Ind.; a brother, Edward Lichtenberger of Elkhart; and a sister, Mrs. John S. Landon of Kokomo, Ind., survive him.

Patrolman to Be Pallbearers.

He was a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and the Loyal Americans of the Republic. Funeral services will be in charge of the police department, it being the wish of Mr. Lichtenberger that the pallbearers be the men with whom he had worked for so many years and whom he knew so well. An escort of police, led by Capt. James Schock, will accompany the body. The pallbearers will be named Monday.

Funeral services will be held from the residence Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. F. K. Dougherty of the Grace M. E. church and Rev. G. W. Allison of Hope Presbyterian church will officiate. Burial will be in Highland cemetery.

700 HEAR HAGERTY

Rep. Charles A. Hagerty of this city, candidate for joint senator from St. Joseph and Marshall counties was the principal speaker at a rally held in Tippecanoe, Marshall county Saturday night. The meeting opened the democratic campaign at Tippecanoe and was attended by more than 700. The "Hear Hear" slogan was heard for the evening. L. J. Martindale, attorney at Plymouth was on the speaking program with Hagerty. Both speakers dwelt upon the state and national issues of the campaign and explained the farm loan act and other democratic measures which have been passed for the benefit of the rural communities.

SHOWS SUNDAY SCHOOL FRUITFUL CHURCH FIELD

Rev. H. B. Hostetter Points Out 80 Percent of Members Come From Classes.

At the Westminster Presbyterian church Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. H. B. Hostetter spoke on "Religious Work Among Young People," emphasizing the importance of the Sunday school and the Christian Endeavor societies in the home.

Concerning the Sunday school he said: "Eighty percent of all those joining the church come from the Sunday school class. It is the most fruitful of all the fields of cultivation. We should put in our best efforts here and not let ourselves be diverted into less productive fields."

"The Christian Endeavor society lays stress on the expressional side of the religious life. No religious impression can build up abiding health and strength that does not find outlet in approximate expression. Let the branch that bareth no fruit be taken away."

"The home however is the most important of all our institutions. It has functions which cannot be delegated. Above all co-operation is needed between the home, the church and the school in the work of teaching the children."

LOCAL MEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Robert Shaw and J. W. Reynolds of South Bend Injured in Smash Near Hammond.

Robert Shaw of the Rushton apartments, and J. W. Reynolds, 629 W. La Salle av., were badly hurt when the machine in which they were driving to Chicago crashed head on into another machine on the St. George blvd., between Hammond and Chicago about midnight Saturday night. Both machines were wrecked.

Shaw sustained a fractured skull and several severe cuts about his body, while Reynolds received cuts and a badly injured leg. It was not believed last night, however, that Shaw's injuries would prove serious. Both were rushed to St. Margaret's hospital.

There were four men in the other machine, two of whom, George McFarland, 2604 Wallace st., and George Zuelmaly, 2312 Walnut st., Chicago, were also slightly hurt.

The accident, it is understood, came when Reynolds, who was driving the South Bend car, swerved his machine in the narrow road to pass another machine which blocked the way and the view of the oncoming car.

PATRIOTIC SERVICES HELD AT ST. PAUL'S

Rev. J. L. Gardiner Says Real Glory of Nation is Her Manhood and Womanhood.

The Columbus patriotic service held last evening at the St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church was largely attended. The pastor, Rev. James L. Gardiner, D. D., spoke on "Columbus and the Glory of America." The congregation sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean," and "America." At the close of the sermon motion pictures in three parts were presented on "The Coming of Columbus."

Dr. Gardiner, after giving a sketch of the life of Columbus and of his great work, spoke on the real glory of America. "What is the glory of the real greatness of America?" the speaker inquired. "It is not to be found, let me say, in the vast extent of our country. Sometimes we boast that our country extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific—from Canada on the north to Mexico on the south. But this is not our glory."

"Nor is our glory to be found in the fact that we have a population of over 100,000,000. It is not to be found in the fact that we are the richest country in the world? No, it is true we are rich in gold, in copper and in coal, and in other material resources, but the greatness of any country is not in her material things."

"What then is our glory? I answer it is to be found in the fact that ever since our existence as a nation we have had a love for liberty. From 1776 until the present hour our watchword has been freedom. We count Lincoln great because he believed and taught that in all the realm of thought there was no grander cause, no loftier theme than that of liberty."

"The glory of this nation lies too in our growing love for justice. We are demanding that every child and every man have a fair chance. We build our schools for the blind and for the deaf because we believe that justice demands that children blind and deaf should receive an education. We pass our laws regulating capital and labor because we believe that justice should be meted out to both. In so far as we love justice, we may glory."

"But our chief glory is in the type of our manhood and womanhood. Let me say that the measure of the greatness of this or any nation is to be found in its manhood and womanhood. We glory in men like Lincoln and Garfield and McKinley because they were ready to serve their day, their nation and their God."

PASTOR CALLS SIN LACK OF HOLINESS

Rev. G. W. Allison Shows That Christ Applied It to Himself and Disciples.

"As darkness is not a thing in itself, but only the absence of light, we may at least say with partial truth, that sin is the lack of holiness," said Rev. George William Allison in a sermon on "The Light of the World" at Hope Presbyterian chapel last evening. "It adds to our interest in this theme," he continued, "to know that Jesus chose this phrase to describe himself and also applied it to His own disciples."

"The bible many times over speaks of the glories of the heavenly bodies, sun, moon, and stars, but it places much more emphasis upon the benefits revealed in the light of Jesus Christ. As the eye cannot see without light, so the soul without holiness is blinded to virtue. God's holiness is the sunlight of the soul. 'In his light we shall see light.' The man whose life is full of meanness, vice, and sin is darkness indeed but with the shining in of the light of holiness he reflects goodness, purity, and honesty. He becomes a beacon light to man and a glory to God."

Christ Light of World.

"The Lord Christ referred to Himself as 'the light of the world.' And we appreciate the aptness of the figure. For His character and teachings illumine many a darkened way of life, dispelling the darkness of sin and gloom; and lasting with undimmed splendor through the years. Our sun lightens and warms and gives life to our planet and others seemingly without apparent waste and in processes that are not entirely understood. There is no shrinkage with Christ—but rather an increase! There is a glorious mystery about light and vision. There is no more significant fact than that of the increasing light of Christ in the souls of men from semi-Christianized America to darkest Africa."

"But no matter how brilliant may be the shining sun, there will be no light upon the earth without reflections. Each tree, grain of sand, blade of grass acts as a reflector of the sun's rays. So no matter too, how glorious may be the light of Christ, without the reflecting-power of the Christian men and women we should be without light. Jesus addressed the disciples saying, 'Ye are the light of the world.' In order to light a city at night, the power from the electric generator is spread throughout the city. It seems as though God has scattered his disciples over the face of the earth that those who dwell in darkness may see a great light, each Christian carrying his own candlepower of light into the darkness of sin to illumine gloomy ways with a ray of hope."

Church a Light House.

"Another figure occurs here too; that is thinking of the church as a light-house. Single candle-power lights scattered along the shore of a rocky coast would avail little. But by combining lights there is the added advantage of concentration and penetrating power. Every Christian should be there with his added candle-power to add to the light that may lead another from the darkness of sin. A Christian living at a distance from church said, 'I am still as much a Christian as ever, though I do not attend your services.' He had missed a vital point: his life—his light—added nothing to the brilliancy of the light to guide life's mariners from the rocks of sin. His light did not count in the winner of the world!"

"A minister once visited a member of his parish who attended very infrequently the services of the church. Few words were spoken. Before them burned a grate-fire, with glowing coals. Carefully selecting a bright live coal the minister placed it upon the hearth apart from the rest. Gradually its light dimmed, and finally died out. A whole sermon on light and Christian duty with reference to 'the assembling of themselves together,' which Paul advised, was forcibly preached by that dying ember."

"And further, though your life may not be brilliant, though your powers or abilities be few and poor,—use that you have. Let not your light be darkened. Remember that even a 'smoking flax' will be not quenched—and that your slow-burning life may, under the fanning of the Spirit of God, grow to great power and light and usefulness in the service of the Kingdom. 'How far that little candle throws its beams,' said Shakespeare, 'so shines a good deed in a naughty world.' Bring your light from under the bushel that it may light those who are in the house; put it on its candlestick and let its gleam dispel the gloom of sin. Men seeing your good works, may take heart, and also glorify God—the great glory of whom constitutes shekinah, 'the great shining.' May God's Spirit again move over the face of the deeps of sin, and His voice speak the great creative act. 'Let there be light.'"

REV. H. L. DAVIS IN TWO IMPRESSIVE SERMONS

Preaches on "Fall of Jericho" and in Evening on "Centurion's Faith."

Rev. Henry L. Davis delivered two impressive sermons before large audiences at the morning and evening services at the First Methodist church Sunday.

In the morning he spoke on "The Fall of Jericho" and showed how it symbolized the work of the church in the years to come. He said that the same qualities which make for success and victory for an individual or a people in those times made for them now. Principal among these qualities are: faith, organization, plans, and the Power of God.

In the evening the subject of Rev. Mr. Davis' address was the "Centurion's Faith." He said that the story of the centurion brings out four remarkable characteristics of the man. Although he was a Roman soldier he had sufficient sympathy about him to love his servant. He had religious fervor for he built a synagogue and he had great faith and love.

SAYS LIFE WITHOUT IDEAL IS USELESS

Rev. C. A. Decker Says Study of Some Great Character is Invaluable.

"The life that has no day dreams, that has set up no high ideals is unhappy in its present drudgery and will never find a way out of it," declared Rev. Charles A. Decker in a sermon at the First Baptist church Sunday on "Joseph: The Patriot Prince, who rose from Slave to Sovereign." Rev. Mr. Decker emphasized throughout the value of the study of the great characters both of sacred and profane history as a stimulus to idealism without which true greatness is almost impossible to attain. He described the character of Joseph and said in part:

"Joseph is one of the finest characters in the Old Testament. In many respects he is a type of Christ. He followed in an illustrious line, and performed an important service for his country. His was a busy life, full of adventure as a boy, and full of great achievement as a man. In order to understand him as the ruler of Egypt we must follow him in the various stages of the journey."

Interested Much.

"First, it will be noted that Joseph owed much to his ancestral inheritance. Abraham, the friend of God, was his great-grandfather. Isaac and Jacob both contributed important elements to his character. But he owed his mother Rachel for the finer qualities of love and forbearance that he afterward exhibited. We inherit traits of character, and it is our business to select the good and reject the bad. We are not responsible for what comes to us through our ancestors, but we are held accountable for how we use the material thus handed on to us, and also how we select it."

"Because he was one of the younger children of Jacob he escaped much of the evil influence that surrounded the family when they dwelt in Haran. His father had several wives and it can easily be imagined what sort of a family life they maintained. But when they left the city of the north the character of Jacob changed somewhat and conditions were improved."

Pities Idle Man.

"As a boy Joseph had work to do. He had to take his place in the field tending the flocks and tilling the ground. This was good for him. It prepared him for heavy tasks and responsibilities later in life. The man who hasn't a job, or doesn't want one is to be pitied. The idler does himself as much injustice as he does society that is called upon to support him."

"Another fine thing about the early life of Joseph was that he had dreams and visions. He was not always wise in telling them, for he made his brothers jealous, but it was splendid that he had them. They directed his thoughts to the future. They gave him something to work for. He believed he was of some consequence to the world. The life that has no day dreams, that has set up no high ideals is unhappy in its present drudgery and will never find a way out of it."

"Though Joseph was sold into slavery, this but helped him on toward the goal God has set for him. This was a part of the plan by which Joseph achieved his place and character. In all his troubles he was straight on the road to prosperity. Trouble is not a hindrance if it is a part of God's plan for our lives."
